How to Strengthen Community Engagement in Medicaid Project

Over the past year, the Center for Health Care Strategies (CHCS) and Equitable Spaces (ES), through support from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, held a series of in-depth discussions with Medicaid program staff and community members with lived experience from across the country, culminating in a group convening that brought both groups together. Discussions explored how state Medicaid programs can most effectively build sustainable partnerships with community members; address operational challenges; and implement community-driven policy design, implementation, and evaluation approaches.
